LOCAL MATCH PLANT IN COUNTRY-WIDE MERGER

Consolidated with Eight Other Independent Companies.

CAPITAL IS $6,000,000

Announcement was made on Monday by the president, Col. W. Fred Reynolds that the Pennsylvania Match Co., of Bellefonte, is one of nine independent match companies which have merged their interests into one large company, to be known as the Federal Match Co. The merger, which is capitalized at $6,000,000, has been in process of formation for some time past. Completion of negotiations has been effected only in the last few days, which makes it possible now for the officers of the Pennsylvania Match Co. to confirm announcement of the merger as published in New York and to give some idea as to how it affects our local community.

The nine independent companies included in the merger are: The Pennsylvania Match Co., of Bellefonte; Cleveland Match Co., of Cleveland, O.; Fred Fear Match Co., of Bloomsburg, Pa.; Indiana Match Corporation, of Crawfordsville, Ind.; Minnesota Match Manufacturing Co., of Duluth, Minn.; National Match Co., of Joliet, Ill.; Reliable Match Co., of Ashland, O.; Union Match Co., of Duluth, Minn.; Wheeling Match Co., of Wheeling, W. Va.

L. A. Sherwood, of Joliet, Ill., is president of the new company and Col. Reynolds, of Bellefonte, is secretary. Col. J. L. Washburn, of Duluth, Minn., is chairman of the board of directors.

Of first importance locally is the announcement that the merger will in no manner affect the management or operation of the Pennsylvania Match Co. It will continue just as it has done in the past. Instead of being curtailed in any way, it is the belief of the management that its output will be increased, thus affording regular employment for a larger number of persons than ever before. Col. Reynolds, who took an active part in the negotiations for the merger, made it a point to have continued operation of the plant assured, and his success in the matter is cause for congratulation upon the part of the community. In addition to being secretary of the new company, Col. Reynolds is also a member of the executive committee and the finance committee. With this close connection with the management and control of the new company, he will be in position at all times to safeguard the interests of the local plant.

OBSERVE GOLDEN WEDDING

Pleasant Anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Brickley, of Romola.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Brickley, residing above Romola on March creek, observed their Golden Wedding anniversary on Saturday. The affair was a complete surprise to "Doc" and his beloved partner.

The children, who planned the surprise, were present with their families as follows: Mr. and Mrs. George Heverly and family; Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Boone and children, of Romola; Mr. and Mrs. Chester Brickley and children, of Howard; Mrs. Pearl Weaver and three children, of Saxton; and those unable to attend on account of sickness and misfortune: Alonzo, of Altoona, who had his leg broken on Friday; Edgar, of Juniata, and Howard, of Thompsontown. Edgar T. Bechdel, of Blanchard, was present as a guest.

Mrs. Brickley was born on the farm on Hunter's run, owned by Mr. Bechdel's father, being a daughter of "Shoemaker Sam" Kunes, deceased. She is 72 years old and Mr. Brickley is 74 years old. They have 41 grandchildren and five great grandchildren. Both enjoy good health.

A bountiful dinner was served at the noon hour. All present had a delightful time and Mr. and Mrs. Brickley were remembered with some beautiful and substantial gifts.

Rightnour—Kuhn.

A report from Cumberland, Md., states that Joseph Rightnour, of Bellefonte, and Miss Leona Blanche Kuhn, of Juniata, were united in marriage in the Maryland city on Friday. They plan to reside in Bellwood.

Fined for Violating Dog Law.

A number of Centre County dog owners were fined recently for failure to have dogs licensed. In each instance the fine was $5 per dog.

STOCKING TROUT STREAMS

Many Thousands of Fish Being Distributed.

Many thousands of fish are being distributed this month by the state fish hatchery at Pleasant Gap. Local streams are among those being stocked with trout.

During the period when the streams were lowest and the weather was most wintry, the months of January and February, no fish were placed in the streams. Instead, they were given good care at the hatchery, and now the large stocks are being sent to various streams over the state, most of them being distributed in this section.

Indications for trout fishing seems as favorable now for this season as generally. This in spite of the fact that some are having fears because of the drouth. Those who have studied the fish closely say they were not materially affected in Centre County by the drouth, as the streams in this section had plenty of water for all the fish and that the raccoon fishing stories have been exaggerated.

With April 15 just a month away the anglers and followers of Isaac Walton are making preparations to indulge in their favored pasttime and sport as usual. They are getting their tackle into shape and making plans for visiting the streams and, its a safe venture, there is not one of these who do not expect to land at least a few speckled beauties.

Modify Enforcement Bill.

As a result of opposition to some of the most drastic features of the Pinchot enforcement bill, particularly to the search of private homes, also the burden of proof feature, that measure was modified considerably in the State Senate at Harrisburg this week. The search and seizure and burden of proof clauses were changed to conform to the Volstead law, and the bill was also modified to permit manufacture of cider and fruit juices. Governor Pinchot participated in a conference at which the modifiations were agreed to, when he learned that the bill in its original form would probably be defeated in the Senate where it was claimed to have its greatest strength. Widespread opposition to the bill had developed when it became generally understood that the making of wines in the home for home consumption would be illegal, and that the search and seizure clause affecting private homes might subject citizens to blackmail. Ever since the bill has been before the Legislature it has been stated that it would meet its hardest fight in the House. The strength of the opponents of the measure in the Senate was a surprise to most persons. Governor Pinchot stated that his chief aim was to abolish saloons and prevent illegal selling. In its modified form the bill was passed finally in the Senate on Wednesday by a vote of 30 to 15. It now goes to the House where further amendments will be offered by opponents.

Home from Continental Trip.

Fred Osman arrived at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Osman, on Sunday evening after a trip across the continent that began when he left the home town last autumn. "When I started from here I didn't have any intention of going so far," Fred said, "but I went to Chicago, then to Colorado, and finally to Los Angeles. I was in Texas and at a lot of places." As to how he managed, he said it wasn't much of a trick, but he did not have much money. "I didn't do much work, I hiked a lot, and got from place to place whatever way I could. I never went cold nor hungry. At about five different places I got lodging over night from the police and it was always comfortable. I learned more geography than I did in all the time I went to school. Some of these days I will be getting lonesome again and will start out on another trip."

Dates for Academy Minstrels

Dates for the Academy minstrels this year were announced yesterday by James R. Aughes, the headmaster, as Thursday and Friday nights, May 17 and 18. The big annual minstrels' dance will be held in the armory on Friday evening, May 18. The Academy will appreciate it very much if other organizations will keep these dates in mind and not make any arrangements to conflict with them.

JOHNSTON MANEUVERING FOR NEXT JUDGESHIP

Democratic Attorney Aims to Become Quigley's Successor.

ON PROHIBITION ISSUE

Significant notice to the Republicans of Centre County that it is up to them to nominate the strongest ticket possible for county offices and also to actively support the ticket named, is conveyed in thorough, systematic work being carried on by the Democrats even though the primaries will not be held for six months.

The Democratic managers, it has come to light, are shaping their plans with two objectives in view in regard to naming their county ticket. One is to have a ticket made up representative of all sections of the county, and the other is to have, so far as they can slate it, a so-called "military ticket." To avoid complications following the primaries, which usually results from disappointment among defeated aspirants, the plan of the Democratic managers is to fix up a slate to suit themselves and have the candidates thus slated enter the primaries with no serious opposition. Whether they can get away with such a steam-roller program will hinge solely upon whether the Democrats throughout the county want a hand-picked ticket or prefer to select their own candidates.

Another feature of the plan of the Democratic managers is to raise as large a campaign fund as possible. They have already started on this job. One or more canvassers have been going about for some days asking for subscriptions to this fund. Just how much they expect to raise in this manner is a matter for speculation. The point is, however, that they are trying to get the money in every direction possible, which shows that they are awake and on the job. In short, they are going to elect the Democratic ticket this year if possible. Knowing the facts in the matter, the Republicans of the county will have no one but themselves to blame if the Democrats put over their scheme.

The injection of an unlooked-for contest for the Republican nomination for District Attorney in the last ten days is interpreted by some persons as an initial move in the next campaign for the judgeship in Centre County. A group in the Democratic party headed by Attorney J. Kennedy Johnston will, it is stated, endeavor to have Arthur C. Dale, one of the two Republican aspirants, nominated also on the Democratic ticket. To accomplish this the prohibition issue will be adopted. Observers view the contemplated move as clearly foreshadowing Mr. Johnston's candidacy for both Democratic and Prohibition nominations for Judge two years hence to succeed Judge Quigley.

MAY GET APPOINTMENT

Plan for Commission to Study Stream Pollution.

Grant Hoover, formerly in the insurance business in Bellefonte with offices where John F. Grey & Son are located, widely known in Centre County, may soon be appointed as a member of the new commission planned to study and make investigations in regard to stream pollution in the state with the idea of seeking ways and means to prevent pollution. Mr. Hoover received word on Friday from Nathan R. Buller, state fish commissioner, announcing that a special commission would soon be named.

Mr. Hoover has been actively engaged in conservation activities. He is president of the Lycoming County Conservation Council. He has been located in Williamsport for a number of years since leaving Bellefonte. He has repeatedly advocated a commission to investigate stream pollution during conference at Harrisburg and it is said Governor Pinchot is in accord with the plans and will himself name the members of the commission. The State Legislature will be asked to appropriate $35,000 for the work of a commission to make an outline survey of the water powers of the state.

Baptist Services at Millesburg.

Services are held each Sunday, alternating morning and evening, in the Baptist church in Millesburg, and the public is cordially invited to attend. This Sunday evening at 7 o'clock a special treat is in store, the service to be in charge of Dr. Clarence Adams, pastor of the State College Baptist church. Dr. Adams has an enviable reputation as a pastor and his address is looked forward to with pleasure by those who have heard him on previous occasions.

WORST FIRE THIS YEAR DAMAGED TWO HOUSES

George Ingram and Mrs J. T. Hazel Suffer Losses.

EARLY MORNING BLAZE

Bellefonte's worst fire this year resulted in considerable damage to the George Ingram property on East Lamb St. and slight damage to the property of Mrs. John Thomas Hazel, nearby, early on Sunday morning. Both fire companies, the Logans and Undines, responded with the triple combination pumpers and kept the loss from being much more. Insurance was carried by both families.

The fire started near the back of the Ingram dwelling and had made considerable headway when discovered. An alarm was turned in promptly and the firemen responded quickly, thus enabling them to keep the house from being burned to the ground, although it was impossible to save the south side of it. It required much water to combat the flames, and the Ingram loss from this, in furniture damage, is quite heavy.

The Hazel property was not occupied, Mrs. Hazel having her household effects ready for sale as her husband died recently and she was selling her goods so that her daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. George Barner, of South Allegheny St., could move into the house. The flames charred the weather-boarding on one side of the house, causing slight damage. Some of the household goods were damaged bo water. However, the sale is to be held as scheduled.

The fire siren has not been working, but it was started in some manner to sound an alarm for this fire and then it was found it could not be stopped, so it is again needing repairs.

CRUELTY CASE DISMISSED

Say It Followed Course of Most Similar Suits.

Mrs. Henry Miller, of Taylor Twp., charged with cruelty to animals, was discharged by Justice Kline Woodring on Monday afternoon. It was said this case followed the course as is general with such charges. Neighbors bring the information and then fail to put in an appearance for a hearing to take testimony, so that the justice, for lack of evidence, is obliged to discharge the defendant.

The case comes from Taylor Twp. and the charges were made by Humane Officer George Glenn. It is alleged that one day last week, Mrs. Miller left a team of horses standing in water, exposed to the weather that they were cruelly abused and later put into the barn in an overheated condition without taking down the check rein.

Officer Glenn has been active in preventing cruelty to animals and in several other cases has been able to have persons required to give better care to animals, alleged to have been abused.

Game Bill Amended.

The proposed game code which had been prepared by the State Game Commission, and introduced in the Legislature by Representative Tom Beaver, by request, was amended in most of its principal features this week. The license fee which had been advanced to $1.50 has been restored to $1. A protected season for groundshogs was stricken from the bill. Leading members of the Legislature are of the belief that when the code is finally passed it will make virtually no important changes in the law that has been force during the last two years.

Get-Together Banquet.

On Tuesday evening at the "Get-Together" supper of the different churches 100 Christian men met to enjoy the splendid meal served by the Women's Auxiliary, enjoyed good singing and heard an inspiring address by A. B. Van Ormer. His subject was "The Call of the Christ." The singing was led by Russell Blair and Rev. Mr. Evans.

Ordered Stills Destroyed.

Judge Quigley in court a few days ago issued an order directing Sheriff Dukeman to destroy the several stills, old tin buckets, copper pipe, etc., confiscated in various raids in Centre County in the last year. The sheriff used a sledge hammer and made short work of the job.

Mr. Hurley Resigns.

W. E. Hurley, for some time past the efficient highway superintendent for Centre County, has tendered his resignation, effective April 1. It is reported that his successor will be some one transferred here from another county.

AUTOES DAMAGED IN CRASH

Ford Put Out of Commission; Buick Even Worse.

In a crash on Tuesday afternoon that brought everybody in the vicinity to the scene of the accident, a Ford coupe and a Buick touring mixed affairs on North Allegheny St., between offices of Dr. J. M. Locke and Burgess W. Harrison Walker. Both cars were damaged, the Ford the worst, and were towed to garages for repairs. The drivers, the only occupants, were fortunate in escaping injury.

Geo. A. Beezer was driving the Buick. R. P. Bergan, of Philadelphia, representing the Queen Auto Supply Co., of Lancaster, who has been making a visit in this section about once a month for a long time, was in the Ford coupe and had driven along Allegheny St. toward Howard St. He was in the act of turning his car about so as to drive toward the Diamond again when he noticed the touring car coming toward him. He said, "The car seemed to be coming pretty fast and I couldn't get out of the way."

The many who gathered to see the cars noted that the touring car was still headed toward the Diamond, the front wheel on the left side considerably smashed and the rear wheel on the same side entirely broken away from the machine, the frame of which rested on the curb. The fender and top were also damaged, as well as less serious damages.

The coupe was still standing to the right of the road and the only noticeable damage was the left fender, ruined, and scratching of the paint, with some broken glass. However, Mr. Bergan stated he could not get it started, indicating "Lizzie's" worst effect of the shock was the internal damages. Word was sent to Hockman's garage and the coupe towed there for repairs.

PUPILS STUDY AGRICULTURE

Make Good Grades in Short Course Vocational Agriculture.

Students of rural High schools in Centre County have completed a ten weeks course in poultry. All phrases of poultry on the farm were studied. This included proper housing, feeding for egg production, flock improvement, selecting and culling stock.

Short courses in practical Vocational Agriculture are being studied by 200 students. The High schools are in a keen competition to secure the best grades and thus obtain the highest school average. Standing of the High schools is reported by J. B. Payne, vocational teacher for the county, showing grades received in the completed short course in poultry as follows:

Millheim, 85.6; Boalsburg, 84 2; Port Matilda, 82 5; Hublersburg, 82 3; Aaronsburg; 80.8; Centre Hall, 80 1.

The ten highest individual grades were attained as follows: Randall Throssel, Millheim, 95.4; Kenneth Ross, Port Matilda, 94.8; Ruth Bingman, Centre Hall, 94; Mahlon Eby, Hublersburg, 93.5; Kenneth Haines, Millheim, 93; Anna Houser, Boalsburg, 91.3; James Brooks, Centre Hall, 90.5; Franklin Stover, Millheim, 90.4; James Ard, Aaronsburg, 89.4; Roy Morrison, Port Matilda, 88.5; Milford Herman, Hublersburg, 88.5.

Paroled from Jail.

Mrs. Annie Sokoloskie, of Edendale, near Osceola, was paroled from jail on Saturday and permitted to return to her home on arranging to settle for the fine imposed on her when she was sentenced some months ago to serve six months in jail and for the costs of prosecution. She was convicted of violating the Volstead act, manufacturing and selling "hootch". Her husband was killed in a coal mine during the time Mrs. Sokoloskie was in jail here. They have a number of children and it is said that the mother owns two valuable properties near Osceola.

An Administration Achievement.

In the past two years ending on March 4, 1923, the government payrolls were decreased 102,101. Great as that reduction is, the federal tax payer continues to support over a half million federal employes. Of the number dismissed from service, 88,000 were from the war and navy department; 20,000 went out of the treasury; 5,000 from the shipping board. The department of agriculture added 1,200, the postoffice department more than 9,000 and the veterans' bureau over 6,000 employes.

DEATH CLAIMED PRISONER WHO KILLED ANOTHER

James McMonigal Died at Rockview Penitentiary Last Friday.

HAD SERVED HIS TIME

James McMonigal, who had been convicted of manslaughter and had completed his sentence on Feb. 23, but was unable to leave the Western penitentiary at Rockview at that time on account of a serious attack of heart trouble, died at the prison on last Friday evening. He was 58 years old and a widower. His sister was with him during most of the last ten days of his illness.

McMonigal was sentenced to serve from 3 to 12 years on being convicted of manslaughter. He had been at Rockview for several years and had a very good reputation there, being a trusty and workman on the air compressor.

He had previously been troubled with an affection of the heart. About three months ago he had a severe attack and it was feared he would die at that time, but he got all right and was given light work about the prison while recuperating.

His remains were prepared for burial by a local undertaker and sent to his home town, Charleroi, near Pittsburgh, for interment.

STOCKHOLDERS MEETING

Marked Progress of Sutton—Abramsen Engineering Co.

Reports taken at the meeting of the stockholders of the Sutton—Abramsen Engineering Co. held in the Court House in Bellefonte on Monday evening indicate the marked progress that has been made by the firm and show the very healthy condition of the plant.

J. Blair Sutton, of Pittsburgh, was re-elected as chairman of the board of directors. Robt. F. Hunter and George Hazel were elected as directors from Bellefonte, the other members of the board of directors being from Pittsburgh and Cleveland.

In reporting the condition of the business and future outlook, it was stated that $35,000 worth of new orders are booked for future delivery.

It was decided to build a new addition in the very near future to the plant to house the new machinery, with a value of $16,000, now on hand. The shortage of houses in this community which prevents running the plant at capacity because of inability to secure help, was given a lively discussion.

This shortage of houses comes up so frequently at business meetings that the fact that Bellefonte must have the houses to grow is becoming more and more apparent. As yet no definite plan for securing the needed houses has been followed up, although several feasible projects have been considered.

Citizens Military Training Camps.

The Third Corps area will give a 30-day course of C. M. C. T. training to young men, citizen residents of Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia and the District of Columbia from June 26 to July 25, 1923, at Camp Meade, Md., for basic; or at Red Cross for beginners, and for Infantry, Field Artillery, Cavalry, and Engineers, or at Fort Monroe, Va., for Coast Artillery. These camps are conducted by the War Department under the National Defense Act. The object of these camps is to stimulate and promote citizenship, patriotism and Americanism; and with expert physical directors, athletic coaching and military training, to benefit the young men individually, and bring them to realize their obligations to their country. Further information will be gladly furnished by Captain Russell T. George at the armory, Bellefonte, Pa.

Granted Respites.

David Disque, of Philadelphia County scheduled to the electric chair at Rockview on Monday morning to pay the penalty for murder, last week was given a respite until April 30. He was the only person scheduled to be electrocuted on Monday morning, so there were no electrocutions.

Grip Left You a Bad Back?

DOES your back ache day after day with a dull, unceasing throb? Are you worn out, and discouraged — ready to "give up?" Then why not look to your kidneys. Chances are a cold or a chill has weakened your kidneys? Poisons have accumulated that well kidneys would filter off. It's little wonder, then, you have constant backache, headaches, dizzy spells, annoying bladder irregularities, and sharp rheumatic twinges — that you feel nervous, "blue" and irritable. Don't wait for serious kidney trouble. Get back your health while you can. Use Doan's Kidney Pills. Doan's have helped thousands. They should help you. Ask your neighbor!

"Use Doan's," Say These Grateful Folks:

W. W. Espy, mechanic engineer, 176 Franklin Ave., Vandergrift, Pa., says: "A cold settled in my kidneys and caused trouble. Sharp pains in the small of my back made it impossible for me to do much bending. My kidneys were weak and acted too frequently so I had to get up several times during the night to pass the kidney secretions. Inflammation of the bladder set in and the secretions caused great pain in passage. I used Doan's Kidney Pills and the trouble disappeared."

Mrs. S. D. Stephey, 33 S. Grant St., Waynesboro, Pa., says: "A cold brought on kidney trouble. My back felt stiff, lame and sore. I had sharp, stinging pains that made me nervous. Tiny spots came before my eyes, blurring my sight and I had pains in my head and dizzy spells. My kidneys were irregular in action. Reading of Doan's Kidney Pills I began their use. A few boxes of this remedy rid me of every sign of kidney trouble."

Woman Reigns Over Island.

A lost Pacific island whose several natives are ruled by a white woman has been discovered by an English survey ship, according to a report from San Francisco. The woman, widow of an Australian, went to the island in the far South Pacific, which is called Bardoa, years ago, in the hope that missionary work would serve to assuage grief over the loss of her husband, and now she is recognized as the high priestess and supreme ruler of the island. The only other white inhabitants of the island, according to the report, are an English author, his wife, and an Irish servant woman.

Knitted Apparel in Favor;

New Styles in Spring Suits

SEVERAL things have conspired during the past few months to promote the cause of knitted dresses and knitted outerwear. In all northern latitudes there has been an awakening to the charms of real winter sports, and they have proved so alluring that quite a number of winter tourists take their way toward the northern lights instead of toward the southern stars. These winter sports demand the sturdiest and warmest kinds of clothes and hence the boost for knitted sports wear.

An attractive knitted two-piece dress for almost any kind of sports wear, appears in the illustration. One-piece frocks of exactly similar appearance are among its rivals. This model is of tan yarn knitted in a close stitch and barred with a narrow pin stripe in brown. The skirt is plain and the jacket semi-fitted with high collar, cuffs and band down the left side of brown angora. There are various color combinations in knitted dresses; those in white or beige or light tan with crossbars or stripes in green, blue or orange, appeal to the sportswomen in the warmer climates, while darker tan, brown and high colors find the snow a fine background.

An Attractive Knitted Two-Piece Dress.

But knitted frocks are no longer confined to sport clothes—what with new knitted laces in wool, knitted yard goods in silk, silk fiber and mixtures of these with wool or mohair, smart afternoon costumes are making their appearance among things knitted. Much attention is given to new color effects and in the chameleon and moire effects many colors are combined. Even dance frocks are shown knitted in a loose stitch with drop stitch stripes and metal threads knitted in.

It looked for a while as if our old friend, the two-piece tailored suit, was about to be totally neglected and almost forgotten, eclipsed by the dressier three-piece, costume suit. But now it emerges (having fortified itself with new style-points, in its decorative features), and invites comparisons. Whoever is looking for something new in suits, is going to find it, for the quest will reveal novel embellishments, new adjustment of skirts and new colors in fabrics.

At the left of the two suits pictured, a model is shown in twill cloth which will arrest attention for several reasons. One of these is its short jacket with three-quarter length, flaring sleeves, in lieu of a regulation coat. This gives prominence to the bodice of bright, printed silk with long peasant sleeves, finished by a band of the twill at the wrist. The collar on the jacket is a new treatment of this feature and is simply a puff of the twill. Ties of moire ribbon provide a unique way of fastening the jacket, which is finished at the bottom with a band of the material headed by a piping.

The straight skirt hangs from a yoke, formed by parallel rows of corded shirring and there is a narrow belt of moire, with small metallic slides.

A plainer suit of homespun at the right is very smart and springlike with box coat, having surplice front and revers. It utilizes the fashionable side-tie fastening and adopts a summer-fur collar. A suit of this type always finds an army of admirers, having simplicity and distinction to recommend it to women who appreciate the pre-eminent value of these qualities.

Could Hardly Eat or Sleep Because of Chronic Indigestion —Now Praises Tanlac.

W. N. Hatcher, 110 Lucile Ave., Greenville, S. C., is still another who has realized the wonderful merits of Tanlac. Mr. Hatcher has been a member of the Greenville Police department for thirty years and is one of the most efficient and popular officers on the force. In commenting on his experience with Tanlac Officer Hatcher said:

"I know many others, besides myself, Tanlac has helped and I am glad to speak out for it. I had suffered from indigestion and constipation for something like fifteen years. I had about reached the point where I could neither eat nor sleep, for every time I ate it hurt me and the misery kept me awake at night. I had lost energy and strength until when my day's work was over I would feel completely played out."

"I now eat anything I want, always have a fine appetite, and have gained eight pounds. I am certainly thankful to be able to enjoy a good meal once more and not suffer afterwards. I am just like a new man and Tanlac gets all the credit."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Over 35 million bottles sold.—Advertisement.

HEALTH FOR WORKING WOMEN

Let Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Help You to Become Well.

Thousands of girls have to work in homes, offices, stores, mills or factories who are physically unfit for work, with often an aged or invalid father or mother dependent upon them for support. Standing all day week in and week out, or sitting in cramped positions a girl often contracts some deranged condition of her organic system which calls a halt to her progress and demands restoration to health before she can be of use to herself or anyone else.

For these distressing weaknesses and derangements these girls have found health to do their work in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Brooklyn, N.Y.—"Like many girls, I had troubles every month," says Carolyne Mangels, "and they interfered with my work as I could never be sure of my time. My mother often suggested that I take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, but I never did until lately. I have had very good results, and am now a private secretary and do my work without missing a day. I recommend your medicine to every girl who speaks of having troubles like I have had."—CAROLYNE MANGELS, 407 14th St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

NOBODY LIKES TO WASH DISHES OR OTHER DISAGREEABLE TASKS

Many Unnecessary Motions Made in Washing Dishes.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Have you ever timed yourself washing dishes, or doing any of the other less agreeable tasks, to see whether there was any way of shortening the work? Or noticed what motions you make with your hands during this and other daily jobs? Or how many steps you take in connection with a meal, particularly when you are clearing the table and washing the china and other utensils used during the meal and its preparation? Every motion requires energy, and unnecessary motions use up unnecessary energy, leaving one fatigued with no real gain. And when actual minutes are saved, they can be put to more interesting uses than the routine of daily dishwashing.

One of the best ways to observe yourself, says the United States Department of Agriculture, is to make a time, method and motion study of the different duties about the house. It will add zest to the housework, help to make one see measures necessary for reform, and make one ready to assist an inefficient neighbor.

Use Unnecessary Energy.

Starting with dishwashing: There are several ways of attacking the task. Try the way you are doing the work, observing as you go whether there are any motions made which could be eliminated, or if any part of the process could be shortened. For instance, those who possess dishwashing machines expect to leave the dishes to dry themselves after being washed and rinsed with very hot water. This principle can be applied perfectly well to dishes draining in a basket if a kettleful of clean, hot rinsing water is poured over them. The process of wiping can then be entirely eliminated, except possibly for the glass and silver. Fewer towels are thus used, and the amount of washing of tea-towels is reduced.

Look at the details in the above picture and see how many time and motion saving suggestions it contains, although the housewife evidently has only a farm kitchen with few conveniences. She does not even possess a drain board, which would be very desirable if placed on her left where the table now is. Right-handed persons ordinarily hold what they are washing in the left hand, and apply the mop or dish cloth with the right, so that when the dish is set on a drain board at the left they do not have to cross their hands. In spite of this simple and obvious way of doing the work, it is common to find in houses offered for sale or for rent a right-hand drain board, installed probably by some masculine architect who did not think out the process of doing the work or consult any woman about it. Having two drain boards, a drain board at the left and a level shelf at the right-hand side of the sink for stacking the soiled dishes is even more convenient than having only one drain board.

Many Steps Saved.

There is only one tap shown in the picture, and the large kettle on the stove suggests that the housekeeper has to heat all the water she needs. Running hot water is a great boon, but not available in all homes. Steps have been saved in this instance by placing the sink fairly near the stove, and by bringing all the dishes from the dining table into the kitchen on the tea-cart. Utensils that hang up are put on hooks on the wall right over the sink; and evidently all the pots and pans were washed before the meal was served, which greatly shortens the time for the entire job of dishwashing.

The sink is several inches higher than the table, so that the housewife does not have to stoop over it. When the clean dishes are set in the drain basket the task will be done, as nearly all of them will probably be wanted on the table for the next meal. If the china is to be put away, a set of shelves within reach of the sink would save many steps.

PREPARE GELATIN IN VARIETY OF DISHES

Attractive Desserts Are Relished by Young and Old.

Succulent Fruits and Fruit Ices Are Particularly Acceptable After Comparatively Heavy Meal—Recipe for Pudding.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Gelatin can be used in the preparation of a great variety of attractive desserts which are liked by young as well as by old and are for this reason convenient for occasional use in families where adults and children must both be provided for. Gelatin is used in such small amounts that it cannot be relied upon to furnish much nourishment. It takes up a large amount of water, however, and forms bulky or light desserts. Such desserts, which include also succulent fruits and fruit ices, are particularly acceptable after a comparatively heavy meal. Gelatin is a good means of introducing fruit juices, and to some extent also vegetable juices like those of tomatoes and cucumbers, into the diet. These juices contain vitamins, some of which are probably destroyed by heat, so that it is well to know a variety of ways of serving them raw. One of these ways is in the form of gelatin desserts. The following recipe is recommended by the United States Department of Agriculture.

Snow Pudding.

1 tablespoonful granulated gelatin.
¼ cup cold water.
1 cup boiling water.
¾ cup sugar.
¼ cup lemon juice.
Whites of three eggs.

Soak gelatin in the cold water and then dissolve it in hot water. After adding the sugar and lemon juice, strain and set aside to cool, stirring occasionally. When it is quite thick, beat with an egg beater. Add the well-beaten egg whites and continue to beat until it is stiff enough to hold its shape. Mold or pile by spoonfuls on a glass dish. Serve with a soft custard made with the egg yolks.

Variety can be obtained in this dish by substituting fruit juices for all or part of the water. Fruit juices like those of grapes and berries that are not injured in flavor by heat can be used in place of the water for dissolving the gelatin, though this may destroy some of the vitamins.

WHOLESOME FOOD FOR CHILD

Where Given Quart of Milk and Butter on Bread Avoid All Kinds of Fatty Foods.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

There is more than an ounce of fat (at least two and one-half level tablespoonfuls) in a quart of whole milk. If the healthy child is given a quart of milk, and has butter on his bread, he gets enough fat, and that which he receives is in wholesome form. It is well, therefore, the United States Department of Agriculture believes, not to give children such fatty foods as pastry, fried meats, doughnuts or rich cakes, as experience has shown that in these the fats are not in so good a form for them. If the child is constipated, the occasional use of cream or salad oil is desirable, for fat in abundance is laxative.

LADY SICK THREE YEARS GETS WELL USING HYPO-COD

"Was a Wreck; Unstrung, Weak, Had Fainty Spells, Could Not Walk—Spent Six Months on Her Back in Bed."

"HEART AND WHOLE SYSTEM RUN DOWN"

"I suffered with what the doctor pronounced neurasthenia for three years, and for six months was down flat on my back in bed. My heart became weak and I was a complete wreck. Nervous sweats, weak spells, fainty attacks, all contributed to my misery. Finally I was told that this wonderful medicine, Earle's Hypo-Cod was good for nerves and strength. I got such good results from the first bottle or two that I kept up the treatment of four doses a day for three or four months and now I am feeling like another person. I can do all my housework, and my heart is better. I am stronger and never have those nervous, fainty spells any more. I sleep fine and my appetite is good, too, so you see Hypo-Cod worked wonders for me, and when you remember that I had been sick three years and thought I never would be a well woman again, I think it is wonderful," declared Mrs. May Mitchell, 1828 Cliff St., Pittsburgh, Pa.

When the system has weakened and faltered and apparently given up its fight—it takes a powerful, modern, up-to-date tonic to bring results. Thousands of people have found that Hypo-Cod is ideal, modern, powerful and economical. All druggists have it. It brings results days and weeks sooner than old-fashioned weaker preparations. I could not eat and did not have enough blood, and had a hacking cough, which annoyed me. I was a physical wreck when I began taking the 'Discovery' and three bottles of this medicine completely put me on my feet; my cough stopped, I could eat well and felt well and strong. CONTRACT LET FOR BUILDING

Varsity Hall to Be Erected at State College.

Varsity Hall, the first of the $2,000,000 campaign fund buildings at State College, is to be started soon and to be completed by fall, according to announcement on Saturday. The contract has been awarded to F. L. Hoover & Son, of Philadelphia.

The new building will replace the Frank House and is to serve as a dormitory and athletic training house. It will accommodate upwards of 74 men students and, in addition, will have special sleeping quarters for visiting athletic teams. Hugo Bezdek, director of athletics, has been keenly interested in Varsity Hall and is very much pleased that construction work is to be started on it almost immediately.

Varsity Hall will be of fireproof construction throughout. The architecture is an American adaptation of the Georgian. A red Colonial brick wall will be used with a trim of Indiana limestone and Pennsylvania bluestone. There will be a central unit two stories high with two wings, each two stories in height. In addition to bedrooms, there will be a large trophy room, dining room, kitchen, living, reading, game and conference rooms.

It was discovered by Brooks that the fox passed a certain spot regularly and a "watchful waiting" policy on the part of the hunter enabled him to learn that the fox, to prevent being scented, scaled a tree and waited, according to Brooks, who was rewarded for his patience by finally getting a bead on the cunning animal the other day, and then the fox was his.

Many Yields of More Than 400 Bushels to Acre.

More than a score of Pennsylvania farmers last season raised over 400 bushels of potatoes to the acre, and a new state record for high yield was established at only three bushels less than 500, according to yield records of farmers, co-operating with The Pennsylvania State College.

The highest yield reported to the college by these farmers to date was from the farm of F. H. Dickrager, at Tionesta, Forest County, who dug 497 bushels of spuds per acre while Prof. E. L. Nixon, the college extension plant specialist, checked the digging.

"Mr. Dickrager raised the cheapest potatoes in the state," says Prof. Nixon, who adds that low cost of production is the most desirable point these days in potato growing, making larger profits possible. The state average for potato production last season was 120 bushels per acre.

It is estimated that almost 20,000 acres of potatoes were sprayed last season due to college activity in this department. The planting of disease free seed also aided in the low production costs. No report was received from Potter County, where scores of farmers specialize in potato growing, but the leading producers of the state, with their official yield per acre checked by county agents or other college representatives are as follows:

Northampton County, A. Achenbach & Son, Bath, 478.5 bushels per acre, and Frank Woodring, 442 bushels.

Butler, W. J. Fox, Cabot, 440 bushels.

Lancaster, M. V. Brubaker, New Holland, 440 bushels. Abner Risser, New Holland, 418 bushels, and S. H. Imboden, Elizabethtown, 412 bushels.

Crawford, J. L. Abrams, Meadville, 420 bushels.

Luzerne, R. E. Briggs, Nescopeck, 418 bushels.

Union, J. L. Reitz, Lewisburg, 417 bushels.

Montgomery, J. S. Anders, Norristown, 412 bushels.

Lawrence, O. S. Minor, Volant, 408 bushels.

Centre, A. C. Kepler, Pennsylvania Furnace, 405 bushels.

Jefferson, W. J. Buchannon, Reynoldsville, 405 bushels.

Wayne, R. B. Simons, Sterling, raised a few below the 400 mark with a total of 396 bushels per acre.

Bell Telephone Co. Report.

The annual report of the directors to the stockholders of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. for the year 1922 has just been distributed to local persons interested. It shows an increase in Bell subscribers in the United States since 1920 of more than 2,600,000. It also emphasizes that Bell stockholders number 248,000, which is larger than that of any other corporation in America. The distribution of the stock is given as follows: 15 held 5,000 or more shares each; 363 held from 1,000 to $5,000: 12,288 held 100 to 1,000; 236,241 held less than 100 shares, and of this number 198,028 held 25 shares or less while 81,485 held 5 shares or less.

Flood Danger Not Past.

Flood danger is not passed in Pennsylvania, according to a warning sent out by the state water supply commission from Harrisburg, which states that the mountains are covered with snow. The commission's engineers say a warm rain could easily cause this to melt rapidly and add so much water to the swollen streams, that floods would quickly result.

Seized Whiskey.

County detectives raided a warehouse room in Braddock on Friday and secured 36,000 gallons of whiskey valued at $124,000. An elaborate distilling plant was destroyed. It was the biggest haul secured in the Pittsburgh district since prohibition enforcement was started. Carbon oil was poured into the whiskey to destroy it.

Under Bail for Bootlegging.

Mike Mitcheto, of North Philipsburg, was placed under $500 bail by Thomas Byron, justice of the peace, at a hearing on Friday morning. Micheto was charged with possessing, transporting and furnishing intoxicating liquor in violation of the Woner act.

Established at Washington.

Congressman W. I. Swoope announces that his office in Washington has been opened in charge of a competent secretary, and all communications addressed to him there with reference to matters relating to the Federal government will receive prompt attention.

Not Microscopic.

Mrs. Carter was a careful mother and she had repeatedly cautioned her little girl, who was seven years old against handling any object that might contain germs. One day the little girl came flying to her to say: "Mother, I shall never play with my puppy again because he has germs on him."

"Oh, no," insisted the mother; "there are no germs on your puppy."

"Yes there are," insisted the child; "I saw one hop."

Temporary Loan.

A five-year-old came running into his aunt's home, which was not far from his own, and said:

"Oh, auntie, mother wants to know will you please borrow me while she goes shopping."

Aurora Borealis Record.

The record aurora borealis lasted for a week in August, 1859.

Uncle Abner's Will

By ROSE MEREDITH

(©, 1921, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Betty Lasher waved her hand as the smart blue car swung around the corner; a straw hat waved good-by as the car vanished. Betty was still smiling when she entered the cool living-room and blinked her pansy-brown eyes at Uncle Abner. The elderly gentleman looked over his spectacles and frowned.

"Who was that young man, Betty?"

"George Farnum, Uncle Abner," yawned Betty, pulling off her bright hat and tossing it on the table. "We had a perfectly gorgeous ride out to the Falls."

"H-hm!" Uncle Abner always cleared his throat when he was about to say something disagreeable. Betty sat down primly on the comfortable old sofa. "H-hm," repeated Mr. Cory, "Am I to understand that you have broken your engagement to Jack?"

Betty twisted the diamond on her left hand and blushed warmly as she raised her eyes to meet the fierce blue ones of her nearest relative.

"Broken my engagement to Jack? No indeed, uncle dear; but Jack is away off in Kansas now, and it is dull—George has been so good to take me around."

"George is a fine fellow."

"Isn't he?" cried Betty with sparkling eyes. "So clever, too, and he's the kindest old thing in the world."

"Jack is a fine fellow, too," pursued Mr. Cory, dryly.

"We know that," murmured Betty, blushing furiously. She picked up her hat and turned toward the hall.

"Elizabeth!" called Uncle Abner coldly, "does Jack know that you have been receiving attentions from George Farnum?"

"I have told him about the rides," said Betty as she marched upstairs, her eyes full of tears. It had been lonesome after Jack's departure for the West to install some special machinery in a large manufacturing plant there, and upon the success of his first commission for his firm depended Jack Monroe's advancement with the great house of Latimer & Latimer. Mr. Abner Cory was a large stockholder in the Latimer works, and he had looked with approval upon Jack's engagement to his little niece. He rather distrusted George Farnum's idleness and riches, although he liked the young man personally and considered that he had the making of a man in him if he would only get to work.

But he wanted Jack for Betty, so he said.

A few days later Betty sat on the front porch knitting a gay sweater. Inside the library Uncle Abner was talking to his lawyer, Daniel Smith. Their voices rose and fell in endless discussion of stocks and bonds and mortgages. Their tones dropped to a low rumble, and then Betty's wandering thoughts were halted by the sound of Mr. Cory's thin voice, speaking with the slow distinctness that always marked his dictation:

"All the rest and residue of my estate * * * I give and bequeath to my beloved niece, Elizabeth Lasher * * * provided she becomes the wife of George Humphrey Farnum * * *" rumble, rumble, Betty heard no more. She had overheard that much because Uncle Abner had spoken louder, as if to impress his lawyer with the words. Pale and trembling, afraid of she knew not what, Betty crept away from the porch and ran out to the shady orchard, where she sat down on the grass to think things out, as she had done when she was a small girl.

What a chaotic thing life was!

She had always believed that Uncle Abner favored Jack Monroe—and yet he had made his will, leaving the bulk of his estate to Betty, provided she married George Farnum—the richest young man in Blessington!

What about Jack Monroe?

"Well, what about him?" thought Betty, as she pictured herself proceeding up the aisle of St. Matthew's church on Uncle Abner's arm, if he were still alive, to meet George Humphrey Farnum—George, smiling and blond, the pink of perfection in husbands, rich, handsome, clever and the "kindest old thing in the world." There would be town and country homes, camps and bungalows, travel and the allurements of society spelled with a capital "S." In fancy, Betty Lasher married George Farnum and was proceeding down the church aisle to the familiar strains of the wedding march when something interrupted.

A wood thrush high in an old tree sang his evening hymn.

Tears came into the girl's eyes. The thrush—she liked to believe it was the same bird—had witnessed her betrothal to Jack—the tender song always made her homesick with longing for her lover. Now she listened with tears running down her cheeks. She would go to Jack now—tonight—they would be married at once and she would work so hard for him. Uncle Abner would leave all his money to George Farnum and welcome.

A very tearful looking Betty walked into the house and ran plump into Uncle Abner in the front hall.

He looked at her over the top of his spectacles. "Well, my dear," he said coldly, "where you have been?"

"Sitting in the orchard—it is so cool there," said Betty, lifting weary brown eyes to his.

"George Farnum telephoned to you . . . he asked to have you ring him up . . . something about a barn dance at Colonel Phipps' place."

"Bother!" muttered the strange Betty, who loved to dance and who could dance the soles from her pretty slippers any time. "Botheration."

"You will call him up?" inquired Mr. Cory.

Betty flashed around on him. "Do you want me to go with him?" she asked.

"My dear child, please yourself," said the old man, smiling benignly on her. "It is a beautiful night and—"

"I will not go," interrupted Betty feverishly. "I must confess, Uncle Abner, that I was sitting on the porch this afternoon and I overheard a few words you said to Mr. Smith—that about your will—and leaving me some money provided—pro-vi-d-d-ed I married G-george Farnum!"

"H-h-hum!"

"Yes, I did, and then I went down to the orchard. I have made up my mind to go to Jack at once . . . tomorrow . . . and get married and we will live in a hut on c-c-canned beans and t-things. Money isn't everything, Uncle Abner, and I do appreciate all your love and kindness to an orphaned girl—but I love Jack—and money doesn't count."

"My dear! My dear!" Uncle Abner patted the bright head leaning against the newel post. "Why—why—you have made me the happiest man in the world—I was afraid you would marry George . . . and I wasn't sure which one you really loved and so I had Smith call, and I dictated that change in my will on purpose so that you could hear it . . . but it doesn't mean anything. You and Jack are my children and I hope you are coming here to live in my lonely house!" Betty was in his arms now and tears were wetting his immaculate shirt front.

The telephone interrupted, and Mr. Cory released her to answer its insistent jingle.

"Oh, George—sorry, but Betty has decided not to go out tonight—we are expecting Jack Monroe home tomorrow—and oh, yes, good-by," and as he turned away from the instrument, he added: "That should teach George not to cut out his best friend—we mustn't tell Jack about it, child, or he will lose faith in George."

"Is Jack coming home tomorrow?" demanded Betty, radiant with joy.

"Here is his telegram—and a September wedding would be just the thing, my dear!" rumbled the old man as they mounted the stairs together.

Out in the orchard, in the afterglow, the thrush sang of love triumphant.

Society.

"Where two or three are gathered together" in the name of the Highest, then first does the Highest, as it is written, "appear among them to bless them;" then first does an Altar and act of united Worship open a way from Earth to Heaven; whereon, were it but a simple Jacob's-ladder, the heavenly Messengers will travel, with glad tidings and unspeakable gifts for men. Such a society, the vital articulation of many individuals into a new collective individual: greatly the most important of man's attainments on this earth; that in which, and by virtue of which, all his other attainments and attempts find their arena, and have their value.—Carlyle.

Legend of Sword of Damocles.

According to Cicero, Damocles, a sycophant at the court of Dionysius the Elder, tyrant of Syracuse, having praised in an extravagant manner the blessings and joys of royalty, was reproved by his master in a singularly effective manner. He was seated at a sumptuous banquet and surrounded by all the trappings of royalty, but on looking upwards, in the midst of his pleasures, he beheld a sharp and naked sword suspended above his head and held by a single horse-hair. This sight instantly sobered Damocles and taught him the salutary lesson that the lives of kings are in peril every hour.

This story is alluded to by Horace.

Correspondence

Pine Grove Mills.

On going to his barn on last Friday morning F. W. Swabb found his best cow dead in its stall; it had shown no sign of being ill.

Squire James W. Swabb has cast his katy into the political ring for county commissioner. Jim would make an efficient officer.

Public sales are all the rage. Hogs are bringing fair prices but cows and horses are handed down at low prices. At the Musser brothers in the Glades on Wednesday, the highest horse sold for $130; highest cow, $50; sale total, $1,100. The following day at the sale on the Harper farm a mated team of blacks were handed down at $125 each, best cow, $76 and sale totaled $1,400.

The M. E. parsonage is closed this week. Rev. J. W. McAlarney is attending the M. E conference at Harrisburg. Mrs. McAlarney is visiting relatives at Broad Top. A petition, largely signed by the members of the charge, praying for his return next year, has been sent in.

Mrs. Ella Moon, of State College, was an over Sunday visitor with sisters Sue and Sadie at the old Lannley home on Main St.

Among the sick are Will Thompson, Jr., Mrs. D. C. Wagner, D. W. Miller, Mrs. W. E. Johnson, Mrs. J. Milo Campbell, Ed. S. Moore, S. M. Hess. The latter is much improved after an attack of pneumonia.

You ought to remember the entertainment to be given by the missionary ladies at Rock Springs hall on this Friday evening, the 16th, at 7:30, and will be produced at Pine Grove Mills on the 17th at the I. O. O F. hall at 7:30.

By our home talent, "The Daughter of the Desert," will be given at the Warriors Mark hall this Friday evening at 7.30. Turn out and have an evening of fun. 25 cents admission.

G. W. Rossman sold his store of merchandise at Rock Springs to his son Fred who is doing a Wanamaker business.

Ellis Auman and Bond Stover spent last week in the City of Brotherly Love where they purchased a new coupe, Cadillac car. Squire E. H. Auman is manipulating the wheel and thus far has managed to miss every pole in sight.

Dr. Stork kindly visited Charley Martin and wife last Wednesday and left a sweet little boy at their home. As it is the first-born, the young couple are much elated. Both mother and babe are doing nicely. Grandmother Martin came over from State College on Sunday to add her blessing to the little grandson.

Misses Gertrude and Maude Miller gave a party at their home in the Glades on last Thursday evening. All who had the good fortune to have a bid had a joyous good time. Refreshments were served full and plenty. Mrs. Margaret Watt Coney, of Freeport, Ill., was guest of honor. She has been visiting friends in the valley the past several weeks and at the home of her childhood.

Mrs. Nancy J. Miller Dead.

Mrs. Nancy Jane Miller, for many years a resident of Bellefonte where she was widely known and held in high esteem, died in Washington, D. C., on Sunday evening at 7 o'clock from complications. She was 70 years old last January and as a native of AxeMann, being a daughter of John and Kathryn Arnold. One daughter, Mrs. Edna Garman Goss, of Washington, D. C., three sisters and two brothers, Roland and Walter, of Reedsville, and two grandsons, Mark and Percy, both of Washington, survive. The body was brought to Bellefonte on Wednesday evening and funeral services held from the home of W. D. Rider by Rev. Geo. M. Smith. Burial was made in Myers cemetery.

Mrs. Lydia L. Carter Dead.

Mrs. Lydia L. Carter, widow of the late Howard A. Carter, died at the home of her son, Lee, in Altoona, with whom she had made her home for several years. Born in Milesburg on June 16, 1842, she was a daughter of Samuel and Lale Daumont. She married Mr. Carter 54 years ago and he died in 1915. Four sons survive: W. R., of Renovo; C. W., of Pittsburgh; Frank C., of Norristown, and Lee B., of Altoona. Burial was made in Rose Hill cemetery on Wednesday afternoon.

J. D. Limbert Dead.

J. Daniel Limbert, a well-known resident of Madisonburg, died last Thursday from complications. He was past 61 years of age and is survived by his widow, whose maiden name was Jennie M. Lamey; the following children: N. C. and Mrs. May Koelle, of Altoona; Kathryn, at home; and three brothers: Alfred, of Bellevue, O.; Harvey, of Rebersburg; and William, of Madisonburg. Funeral services were held on Monday morning and burial made at Madisonburg.

Mrs. Irvin Bitner Dead.

Word was received this week of the death of Mrs. Irvin Bitner, a former resident of Blanchard, at her home in Hagerstown, Md., on Sunday night.

H. P. C. TRCZIYULNY DEAD

Last Link Broken in Family of Polish Nobility.

H. P. C. Trcziyulny, more familiarly known to a wide circle of friends as Charles, died at the home in Milesburg on Saturday morning after a lingering illness, having been seriously ill for several weeks. He was well advanced in years and the last member of a family high in polish nobility years ago.

In the latter part of the seveeteenth century Poland was the seat of intrigue, plots and counterplots in a hotbed of political chicanery. Among the active members of the young nobility was Count Charles Trcziyulny. Banished from Poland for his activities, he settled in the United States and was a pioneer settler in Philipsburg, which town he laid out, being an accomplished engineer.

Count Trcziyulny eventually located in Bellefonte and was chosen postmaster in 1833, succeeding Hamilton Humes. In 1851, at the age of 94 he passed from this life.

He was survived by two sons, Henry P. and Hyacinth B. The former was for many years deputy surveyor of Centre County and died in Milesburg in 1878. The latter was street commissioner and superintendent of the water works in Bellefonte at the time of his death in 1862.

Henry P. married Levina Parker and they had two children—Sarah, who became the wife of Richard Gibbs, and Charles, the subject of our sketch. For many years the brother and sister have resided with one another and with Mrs. Gibbs' adopted daughter, Miss Ollie, in the home in Milesburg. This happy family was broken when death entered the circle on Jan. 13 and claimed Mrs. Gibbs. The parting of brother and sister was of short duration, however, and now but one remains, Miss Ollie, who feels very keenly her loss and who has the kind sympathy of the entire community in which the Trcziyulnys had lived so many years and apparently so well.

Charles Trcziyulny was well liked by all who knew him. His sight was not very good and his hearing was much affected, but he had a pleasing personality. He was a remarkable checker player, one of the best the county ever had, and many times he won games that were closely contested, it giving real joy to those witnessing these games to note what pleasure he showed on winning.

The deceased never married. With the aid of his sister, he took splendid care of Trcziyulny cemetery. Burial was made in the family plot on Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Jacob L. Walkey Dead.

Jacob L. Walkey, a well-known resident of Nittany valley, died in the Lock Haven hospital on Friday afternoon at 3:15 o'clock from cancer of the liver. For some time previously to entering the hospital, the deceased had been staying with his son, John S. Walkey, of Lock Haven. He had been seriously ill since Christmas and was admitted to the hospital about three weeks ago. Born at Hublersburg, he would have been 68 years old had he lived until April 6. He was a farmer during the active years of his life, residing near Hublersburg most of the time. Five years ago he came to Bellefonte and had been here until he went to Lock Haven recently. His wife died 19 years ago. Surviving are three sons: John S., of Lock Haven; Charles C., of Wall, near Pittsburgh; Paul O., of Akron, O.; two grandchildren, two brothers, Samuel, of Atlantic City, and Lewis, of Osceola, and one sister, Mrs. Mary Clevenstine, of near Hublersburg. Funeral services were held on Monday afternoon at the home of his son in Lock Haven. Burial was made at Hublersburg.

James Pierpont Dead.

James Pierpont, formerly a resident and well-known business man in Bellefonte, died in Philadelphia last Friday just after returning from a trip to the Bermuda Islands, accompanied by Dr. J. M. Brockerhoff. The deceased was about 70 years of age. His wife preceded him to the grave. He left Bellefonte about 30 years ago to locate in Philadelphia. Three sons, all of Philadelphia, survive. The body was brought to Bellefonte on Tuesday afternoon and services were held in the Episcopal church. Interment was made in Union cemetery.

Mrs. Henrietta Dale Dead.

Mrs. Henrietta Dale, widow of the late Henry Dale, died at her home in Boalsburg on Monday morning from complications. She had been ill for some time. A native of Huntingdon County, she was past 83 years old. She was one of the best known residents of Boalsburg and held in high esteem by her many friends. Her husband died in 1896. Surviving are three children: Mrs. Harry McGirk, of Bellefonte; Chas. M., of State College; and Miss Anna M., at home. Funeral services were held yesterday morning and burial made at Boalsburg.

Death of Infant.

Lewis, 6-months old son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Waite, of Pleasant Gap, died on Friday from pneumonia. The parents, one sister and three brothers mourn their loss. Burial was made at Pleasant Gap.

POTATO SPRAYING RESULTS

Yields Increased by Modern Methods Says Prof. Nixon.

Economy and quality of production are the outstanding features of the past potato growing season according to Prof. E. L. Nixon, extension plant disease specialist at the Penna. State College according to information through the Centre County Farm Bureau office.

"Last year was the best we have experienced in the past five years for good quality of potatoes raised," Prof. Nixon, says. "It was also a great year for the cheap growing crop for at least twenty growers in the state succeeded in raising over 400 bushels to the acre. The man who raised the cheapest potatoes and probably received more for his labor than any other grower was F. H. Dickrager of Tionesta, whose crop I saw dug to give 497 bushels to the acre A. Achenbach & Son of Bath, Northampton County also produced economically with 478.5 bushels to the acre.

Spraying and the planting of disease free seed last year resulted in an average ncrease of sixty six bushels per acre according to county reports for the entire state with the exception of Potter county not yet heard from. The average yield on the sprayed acres was 231.4 bushels per acre which is a good comparison with the state average yield of 120 bushels per acre for the season. This is an increase of 42.3 per cent for the state average on sprayed and disease free seed fields, one of the best records in the history of spraying demonstrations in the state. Potter county records may increase these figures slightly.

Basket Ball Scores.

The Bellefonte Academy on Friday evening defeated the Bloomsburg Normal basket ball team on the latter's floor with a score of 42—18. The Academy boys had things their own way and the game was at no time in danger of getting from their reach.

Bellefonte defeated Lewistown in a classy basket ball game in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium on Saturday evening. The score was 28—11. The playing of the local team was surprisingly good and just beyond the visitors at all times.

The Bellefonte High school five easily defeated the Mount Union High school team on Saturday evening at Mount Union. The score was 39—18.

The class basket ball teams of the Bellefonte High school have been playing a very successful season. On last Friday evening in the "Y" gym the Freshmen met their first defeat of the season, the strong Sophomore team nosing out a victory. It was a splendid contest and the score was 11—11 at the end of the game. A 5 minute extra period was played and the Sophomores scored 2 points, the Freshmen 1, giving the Sophomores the victory.

Planning for New Church.

Philipsburg Methodists are planning for the erection of a splendid new modern church edifice to be erected on the plot where the Trinity M. E. church is now located. The present edifice was built many years ago. Rev. John Krantz, D. D., of New York city, had charge of services both morning and evening last Sunday when the plan for the new building was given a big boost. The new church is planned to take care of present needs and also for many years in the future.

Mrs. E. P. Irvin Dead.

Mrs. E. P. Irvin died at the Bush House on Monday from cancer. She was a daughter of R. C. and Alice Galbraith, both deceased, and was born at Birmingham, Huntingdon County, on Jan. 21, 1875. Her maiden name was Margaret Galbraith and she married Mr. Irvin in September, 1897. They have been at the Bush House for a number of years. Two brothers survive: Frank, of Pittsburgh; Harry, of New York, also the bereaved husband. Funeral services were held in the Episcopal church today and burial made at Unionville.

Mrs. John S. Bleecker Dead.

Mrs. John S. Bleecker, mother of John and Richard Bleecker, students in the Bellefonte Academy, died in Nashville, Tenn., according to a message received in Bellefonte last Thursday. The deceased had been sick for a long time and was an invalid for several years. The remains were taken to Morristown, N. J., for burial.

Andy Moyer Dead.

Andy Moyer, a well-known resident of Buffalo Run, died on Wednesday morning of last week while driving from Bellefonte to his home in a buggy. He was about 64 years old. Surviving are his widow several sons and daughters. Burial was made at Pleasant Gap on Saturday afternoon.

Franklin Hinds Dead.

Franklin Hinds, 18 months old son of Twila Hinds, of Pleasant Gap, who died from pneumonia on Tuesday of last week, was buried in the Lutheran cemetery at Pleasant Gap on Friday. The mother and babe's grandparents survive.

Burial of Child.

Belma, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fisher, of Blanchard, was buried on Monday afternoon. The child was nine months old and died from pneumonia.

Bank Nearing Completion.

The new Port Matilda bank building is rapidly nearing completion. It is expected to be ready for occupancy some time in April.

Is It Worth While?
Even in this age of progress we sometimes meet a man who does not keep a bank account. He says, "He does not think it worth while."
Does he think that the rural delivery is worth while—or the telephone—or the automobile. A bank account is of as much importance as these, for in a crisis it may give the help that will enable him to keep his telephone, or his car—even his home

HAIR STAYS COMBED, GLOSSY

"Hair Groom" Keeps Hair Combed—Well-Groomed.

Millions Use It—Fine for Hair!—Not Sticky, Greasy or Smelly.

A few cents buys a jar of "Hair-Groom" at any drug store. Even stubborn, unruly or shampooed hair stays combed all day in any style you like. "Hair-Groom" is a dignified combing cream which gives that natural gloss and well-groomed effect to your hair—that final touch to good dress both in business and on social occasions.

Greaseless, stainless "Hair-Groom" does not show on the hair because it is absorbed by the scalp, therefore your hair remains so soft and pliable and so natural that no one can possibly tell you used it.

French Women in Odd Club.

The Broomstick club is the latest of women's clubs to be formed in Paris. The qualification of a woman in France to rank as a "broomstick" is that she must be five feet five inches in height and not weigh more than 130 pounds. There are 36 members of this club, and only a few of them are married. The members declared themselves keen feminists and maintain that taliness and thinness above the average is not the slightest drawback to a happy life, if only for the reason that the modistes prefer dressing them to their shorter and fatter sisters.

The world never will be wholly civilized. Some outlying portions have no natural resources worth seizing.

The only inflated thing that is always accepted at its face value is a compliment.

LEAVES PRISON AFTER 22 YEARS

Oklahoma Man, Held as Slayer, Liberated by Confession of Murderer's Wife.

FINDS CHANGED WORLD

Indian, Sentenced to Life Imprisonment in 1900 for Murder, Finds Himself Wealthy as He Steps Into New World.

Muskogee, Okla.—After serving 22 years in prison for a murder he did not commit, Charner Tidwell, of Welch, Okla., has returned here, probably a millionaire. When seventeen years old he was convicted of killing James Brown, a farmer, in Adair county, and was sentenced to life imprisonment.

Recently a woman, Josie Gregory, made a deathbed confession, declaring that Tidwell was innocent and that her late husband, Robert Gregory, killed Brown, and that both of them, as well as relatives, swore to false evidence at Tidwell's trial in 1900. Brown was mysteriously shot to death in 1899 while riding along a highway to his farm. Tidwell was at the time employed on the farm and suspicion fastened on him, as he had quarreled with Brown shortly before the tragedy. Enough circumstantial evidence was introduced by witnesses to convict him, despite the fight of his attorneys.

Finds Changed World.

Tidwell, who is part Cherokee Indian, found a different world when released. Twenty-two years ago he went to the federal prison at Atlanta, Ga. Oklahoma and Indian Territory still were the frontier." Then small villages of one-story unpainted houses and the council fires of the tribe formed the outstanding picture of youth. Now he is trying to become accustomed to skyscrapers, elevators, street cars, automobiles, and Indians dressed in the height of the white man's fashions.

Government allotments, held all these years, will now be paid to him, and lands, taken from him when convicted, will be restored. He owns one farm of 80 acres in a rich agricultural section that is now in a big paying oil belt.

Three presidents refused to pardon him when friends interceded for him. Judge A. V. Thomas, who presided at his trial, and who was working to set him free, was slain during a prison uprising at McAlester. Tidwell's mother, who devoted her life to secure her son's freedom, died. Twice she had gone to Washington to ask help from a president. It was Tidwell's only sorrow that his mother is not living to rejoice with him.

SON'S THEFTS RUIN FATHER

Man Tells How Boy Began Stealing From Store When But Six Years of Age.

Bethlehem, Pa.—Charged with stealing about $15,000 worth of goods from his father's store since he was six years old, Morris Schulman, eighteen years old, is in jail here. He is facing charges of larceny preferred by his father. The boy's stealing has made him bankrupt, the father explained.

The son began stealing when he was a child, using the money to buy candy. Later he spent all of his time in pool rooms, and stole from his father to pay his debts. Time and again he was given a chance to reform, but he always failed to keep his promise. Finally the father caused his arrest.

War Boom Town To Be Revived

Hopewell, Deserted Guncotton City, Gets New Lease on Life With Industries.

HAD POPULATION OF 45,000

Sprang Up in Six Months Over Virginia Cornfield—Bore Picturesque Title of Most Wicked City in United States.

Hopewell, Va.—A new chapter is being written in the dramatic history of Hopewell.

Most of us remember Hopewell as the great guncotton town of the war—a town of wood and tar paper like an overgrown mining camp. Hopewell sprang up in six months over a Virginia cornfield, and gained fame as a city of 45,000 people dedicated by the Du Ponts to the making of one single article of destruction for the war.

It bore the picturesque title of the most wicked city in the United States, and whether it deserved the title or not, it had in its earliest days all the types of vice that made the gold colonies of '49 famous. Pool rooms, saloons, gambling houses and dance halls thrived on the recklessly spent money of the guncotton workers. Women unescorted were not safe on the streets. Taxi drivers and storekeepers carried revolvers.

One of the most remarkable land booms in American history took place here in this hectic period. A typical story is that of a drunken man with $500 in his pocket who attended one of the sales of lots. He paid out one-fourth cash on land as long as his money lasted. Next day he was sober and penniless. A week later he had sold his holdings for $11,000.

1,500,000 Pounds Daily Output.

When the firing in Europe ceased, Hopewell was daily turning out 1,500,000 pounds of the explosive used in making smokeless powder. The order came to stop work as soon as possible, and in a month 45,000 population dropped to 3,000.

People who had come into Hopewell riding on top of crowded trains now fought to get away. Furniture was moved in every conceivable kind of conveyance, and even abandoned. Storekeepers tried desperately to sell out stock and close business.

Hopewell was part of the war, and nothing more, people said. Its day was done and the village of tar-paper houses would fall into ruin. The Du Pont company started work at once to dispose of all materials and machinery that could be salvaged.

Once some one had asked if the great munition plant could not be operated after the war.

"But this plant could produce enough guncotton in a week to run the United States a year in peace," answered an official. "It could possibly be used for dye making," he added, "but it would make enough dyes in five days to supply America for 12 months."

Pronounced Dead by Experts.

Experts looking at the deserted city, built at a cost of $45,000,000, shook their heads and pronounced it permanently and totally defunct. And it did seem that they were right. Hopewell, the primitive and intense, was reduced to the rustic amusement of sitting in front of the boarded shops on Broadway and arguing over the possible future of a watermelon vine that had worked its way through a crack in the concrete pavement.

You must recall some of this in order to understand Hopewell as it is now. About three years ago an enterprising trunk manufacturer bought some of the machinery that was being carted away and set up a factory. Other manufacturers followed, and today eight plants are busy making artificial silk, china, pulp, tools and other articles. The city has a population of 10,000; one plant alone employs 2,200, and some workers come to the factories from Petersburg. Broadway, Hopewell's main street, is again a headquarters for active business.

Making a tour of Hopewell is like looking at a patchwork quilt containing bits of silk, torn calico, and substantial linen. There are a dozen different sides to Hopewell, and each is restricted to its own part of the town.

In one section are rows of streets lined with well-kept homes such as you find in any attractive suburb. This is "A" village where officials of the guncotton plant once lived. Most of the houses built here were of permanent construction and were more pretentious than the homes for the factory workers.

You leave this quarter and come to another, an entirely different section. Here you pass hundreds of gray and black tar-paper bungalows. This is one of the villages where the workers and their families were housed. Some of the temporary houses are falling to pieces. Some have been scrapped. Whole blocks of them, however, have been bought by the new factories to be rented to their employees, and these homes are being remodeled. Red, green or brown shingling is laid over the tar paper; wooden underpinning is replaced by brick; interiors are ceiled. The bungalows already had electricity and up-to-date sanitation.

Still Resembles War Zone.

Beyond the villages another side of Hopewell comes into view. This is the industrial section, the city of Hopewell proper. In 1918 the Du Ponts thought that a year would surely see their war plant salvaged. For three years they have been tearing down, hauling away, selling, dynamiting and burning. But parts of the industrial section still look like a war zone.

Materials in many of the shops could not be sold because they had been affected by acids. There was nothing to do but dynamite these buildings and fire the ruins. You ride down roads with grassy fields on either side and you see in the tall grass long rows of charred brick and junk where for three years stood shops costing hundreds of thousands of dollars.

One of the few acid houses not yet dynamited stands in a tottering condition as if it had been staggered by an earthquake. Other abandoned buildings are in better repair. A million-dollar power house that could be run by two men stands just as it was locked up and left when the guncotton plant closed down.

A number of warehouses and shops have been taken over by the new industries. One warehouse is pointed out as a place where spools for textile mills are being made by a young American ace. He had once worked in a textile plant, and he had learned that dogwood makes the most satisfactory spools for such a plant. When he left the air service he took this warehouse and began shipping in carloads of dogwood to turn his knowledge into money.

Across the way from the aviator's plant is another shop belonging to a business man. This manufacturer has invented a dishwashing machine and decided to buy his own plant and make it himself.

Squatters' Corner Odd Relic.

In still another corner of this patchwork city you see a row of tumbledown and deserted wooden shacks on the bank of the Appomattox river. This is one of the old relics of the war. It was a squatters' corner in the boom days. Workers who could not find cottages were permitted to build their own shacks here and pay $3 a month ground rent until they could make better arrangements. This land still belongs to the Eppes family, the original owners of Hopewell.

An Eppes received a grant of the land from the English king in 1661, and came over on the good ship Hopewell to take possession. The Eppes' mansion, on a high point of land where the Appomattox river joins the James, is still another distinct side of Hopewell. Here is a historic Virginia residence, surrounded by its stately grounds and fields, quietly aloof from the ups and downs of industrial Hopewell.

One more feature of the city—the Red Cross—stands out. In most places the Red Cross is one of numerous welfare agencies. In Hopewell it is the only welfare agency, and Charles Turner, the Red Cross man, is the best known character in town. The Du Ponts preferred all welfare work to be done by one organization, and the Red Cross happened to be selected. The Hopewell Red Cross therefore engaged, and still engages, in lines of work done by no other chapter in America.

Mr. Turner conducts an emergency hospital, an employment agency, a day nursery, a community Christmas tree. He collects about 3,000 garments a year for persons in need. He keeps a loan closet containing all sorts of sickroom supplies. And he gives aid and relief of every imaginable kind.

Makes Wife Entirely Independent of Spouse

Marriage that does not deprive the woman of her identity or subject her to the "direction or control" of her husband is the mainspring of the "women's bill of rights" which has been presented in the Michigan state senate.

The bill provides that a woman may engage in business without her husband's consent, shall have equal guardianship over their children and shall be exclusive mistress of herself in every affair outside the home.

KING GEORGE TO VISIT ITALY

With Queen Mary, Will Be Guest of Rulers and Call on Pope at the Vatican.

Rome.—King George and Queen Mary will be the guests of King Victor Emmanuel and Queen Helena at the quirinal palace during their visit to Rome in the spring.

The British monarchs also will pay a visit to Pope Pius. They will be received at the vatican with royal honors, and Cardinal Gasparri, the papal secretary of state, will return the call at the residence of the British minister to the holy see, as the cardinal, because of relations between the church and state, cannot go either to the royal palace or to the seat of the British embassy accredited to the king of Italy.

During their visit King George and Queen Mary will be assigned to the apartment occupied in former times by Emperor William of Germany and President Roosevelt.

"COP" ARRESTS DAUGHTER

Charges Her With Being Armed Highway Robber and Automobile Thief.

Cambridge, Miss.—With his voice choked with emotion, Patrolman Timothy E. Murphy made charges of highway robbery and motorcar stealing against his own daughter, Elizabeth, whom he had arrested. The girl had been sought by police for several weeks.

The armed girl bandit stole motorcars and robbed pedestrians time and again, but always escaped clever traps set for her. Finally Officer Murphy was put on the case. He returned to the station with his own child. The girl is only sixteen years old, her father said.

The world was uninterested in the discovery of Tutankhamen's tomb—"just another mummy"—until it was found there was millions in it.

The New York Times says "Anthracite not a Luxury." But let's pretend that it is, so we won't feel so bad about having to go without a necessity.

Viewed from another angle, the back-to-the-farm movement may be considered a great success. Innumerable boys have turned their backs to it.

The color scheme of the driver who runs down pedestrians in a safety zone and then speeds away is, generally, green, with a large streak of yellow.

If it be true that American modistes have banned the bustle from these shores then the modiste's profession deserves one large monument, or several.

If the government buys $10,000,000 worth of nitrate for resale to farmers somebody will surely suggest that it could do as much with coal for resale to householders.

The Poor Rich.

The two women were discussing the spectacular existence of a very wealthy man.

"Yes, my dear," said Mrs. Tooler, "I knew him when he worked for Uncle Bill for $3 a week. Of course, that is the fixed price for all millionaires who have made their money, and it does make one tired, but this is literally true. And now he has a house in New York, another at Newport, a farm on Long Island, an estate in Lenox and cottages in New Jersey and South Carolina, besides a yacht and a private car that is the apotheosis of leather and gilt."

"Where is his home?" asked Mrs. Moreler.

"Home? He hasn't any. When they get as rich as that they've no more home instinct than milk-cans."

Strictly Business.

"Henry," said his employer, sternly, "you did not expect me back again this morning?"

"No, sir," said Henry.

"I suppose you are aware that when I came in I caught you kissing the typist?' And his employer glared at him angrily.

"Yes, sir," replied Henry, without blushing, "but if you remember, sir, you told me to be sure and do all your work while you were away."—Stray Stories.

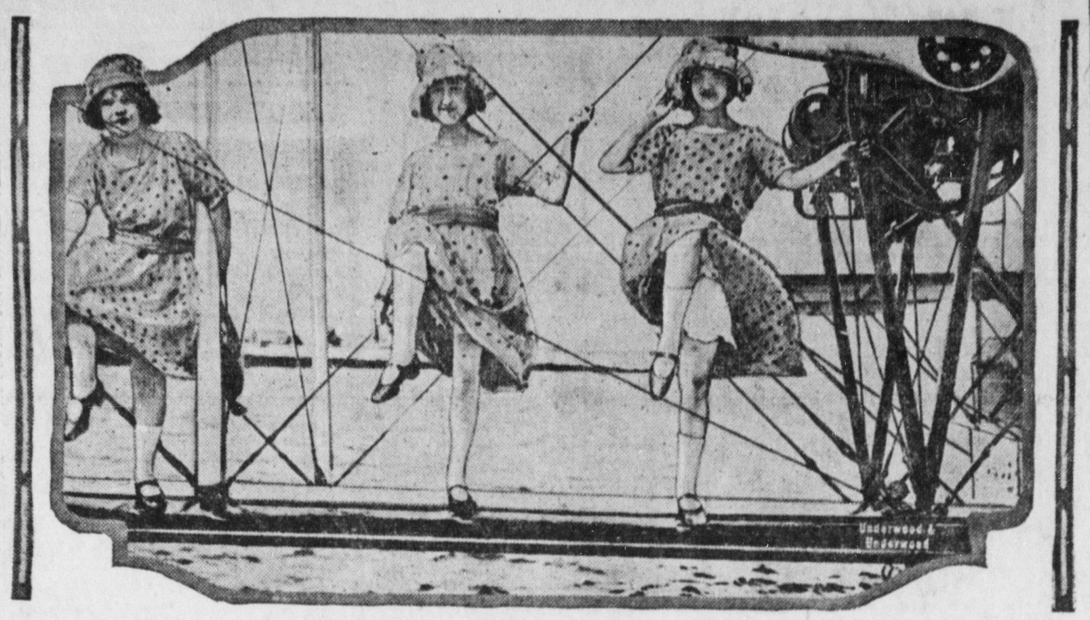
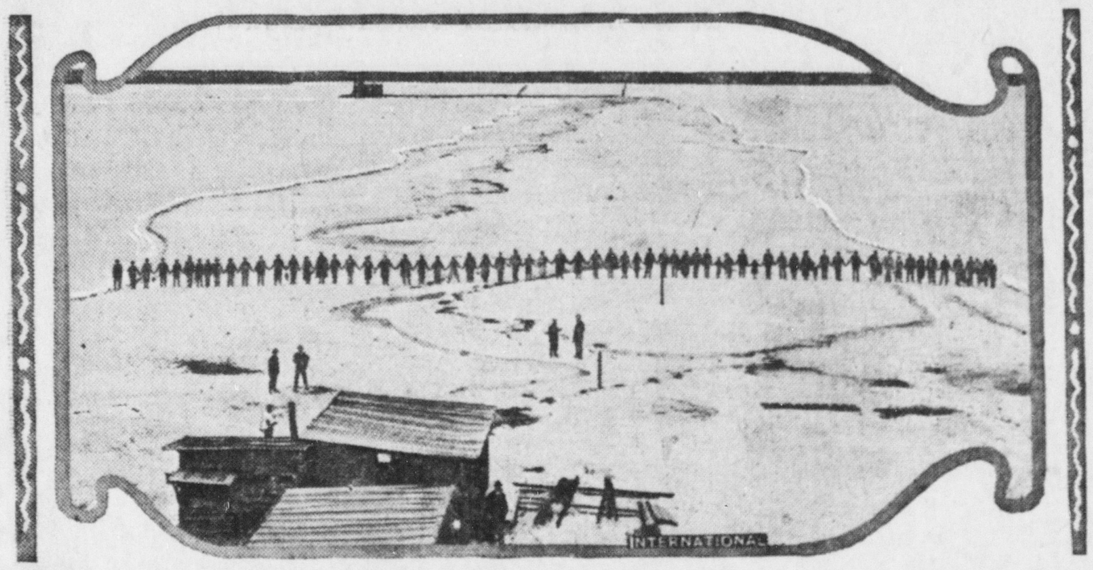
Seaplane's Wing Is the Place for a Dance



To demonstrate that it is possible to do a regular chorus girl step on the wing of a seaplane provided the weight is evenly distributed, members of the Gingham Girls' club of Miami, Fla., so named because its members have pledged themselves to wear only gingham, gave the neat little performance here pictured.

Tampa Bay to Have Great Automobile Toll Bridge



One of the greatest bridge-building efforts is now being made in Florida, where work has been started on the Gandy bridge across Tampa bay. It is expected to be completed in January, 1924, and will be the largest automobile toll bridge in the world. There will be four miles of causeways and two miles of concrete bridgework across the bay, connecting Tampa and St. Petersburg. The St. Petersburg end of the causeway is pictured above—400 feet wide, and shown in contrast with the 65 people stretched across hand by hand.

NO LONGER UNDER CLOUD

Herman Buderus, boy hero of Alsace and leader in boy scout drives, who has finally been absolved of the charges of espionage on which he had been interned as an alien spy at Fort Oglethorpe, Georgia. Young Buderus, during the war sold a million dollars worth of war savings stamps and liberty bonds. He was arrested on Armistice day, interned at Fort Oglethorpe, and some time later was released. He brought his case to the attention of William J. Burns, whose investigation proved that the boy's record did not disclose any acts of espionage on behalf of Austria or Germany. Young Buderus, whose father, Baron Buderus, was slain by the Germans, was later adopted by a German nobleman. It was this adoption which gave rise to the belief that the boy was a German.

Angler Fish Lives on Sea-Bottom.

The family of the angler-fishes contains more strange forms than any other. Living on the sea-bottom and seeking their prey by stealth, angler-fishes do not need powerful swimming muscles; consequently the size of the body and tail has become considerably reduced, so that the head, relatively to the size of the body, is unusually large (and villainously ugly).

The Detestable Dance.

Will "The Last Waltz" lead to a revival of the waltz in England? Miss Mitford, the sedate author of "Our Village," would have been horrified at the very idea. Writing in 1814, she described the waltz as a "detestable dance," adding, "In addition to the obvious reasons which all women ought to have for disliking it, I cannot perceive its much vaunted graces."

The Missing Heiress

By JANE OSBORN

(©, 1923, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"If only I had a million!" Anne sighed.

"Now, what would you do with it?" Lois asked.

"Buy things. 'Ships and shoes and sealing wax'—air ships, understand, and golden slippers, and sealing wax. Old Man Trouble could never, never break through," Anne returned, hurling a Sunday supplement across the room. "It's simply miserable," she went on, "to read about the things people have and do, and see—and know we must stick here same as the trees so long as we live."

"I'm glad to be so well-rooted," from Lois, the philosophical. "Don't you be wishing any cyclone on us. You're greedy—a real pig, to pine for more—when you've a span-new hat, three frocks and silk stockings, to say nothing of real bronze slippers."

"And nowhere to wear 'em but picnics and preaching." Anne burst out: "And nobody notices how I look anywhere!"

"Mistake. Seven heads turned when your canary organdie went up the aisle Sunday," Lois comforted. "And guess whose was one of them? Vance Raynor's."

"Pshaw! Widowers don't count—no more than preachers," Anne disparaged. "At least not while they're green—after they're case-hardened I rather like them."

"Why waste breath telling me things I know so well?" Lois flung back, yawning again.

Anne ran to the window. Peering through the half-shut blinds, she said in a stage whisper: "Somebody's coming—two somebodies in fact. Man and woman—in a car—no, there are three. Can't tell about the hind-rider. Wonder what they want—water, or apples, or us?"

"Easy to find out," Lois said as the car stopped short. No hail came through the silence, hence these must be visitors. Also strange—neighbors knew better than to break the Sabbath by calling at the Marston place. All week it was the scene of noble hospitality, but nobody was welcome there upon the day of rest.

"We'd better go out. Miss Peg is sound asleep," Anne said, opening the big front door very softly. Lois slid through it behind her. Together they went down the broad stone steps and along the gravel walk up which the car-people were walking slowly, held from speed by the flowers in the bowlders on either side. The woman, gray-haired but supple, bent to kiss a rose—specially gorgeous red one. The men, her juniors, smiled at her, but not impatiently, rather as though sharing her joy.

"Hello, orphans!" she called gayly as her eyes fell on the girls. "You don't remember me, but I saw your beginning here. Where is that wonderful Peggy person? Go fetch her—quick! I've come 50 miles out of my way to see her, and can stay just two hours."

"It's Sunday, you know," Anne began tentatively.

The gray-haired one frowned merrily. "Of course I know," she said. But Sunday or no Sunday I'm bound to see my Peggy; it may be my last chance. These runagates," nodding at the young men—my nephews, Phil and Edmund Gore—are bent on showing me the whole of the United States from an auto, and I'm mighty 'fraid I won't last the trip through. Boys, make your manners to Anne Bell and Lois Norton. I'm happy enough to cry to see what you have grown to be. Peg drew prizes in the big lottery, and so I think did you."

Her cheery voice broke on the last word—all were silent a minute recalling the old-time tragedy—the train wreck that had left a dozen young children desolate. It had happened upon what was to have been Miss Peggy Marston's wedding day—her betrothed had perished in it—she had risen from her depths of grief to succor the helpless. Ellen Gore, her closest friend, now the gray-haired Mrs. Edwards had attended to all details—being then, as now, a pattern of cheerful efficiency. Oddly, the friends had not met since that sorrowful parting—Ellen had wandered the world over, Peggy stayed in her backwater, doing what she could with her broken life. She loved her adopted daughters, they made her time of waiting less weary, but she would be glad when the end came, and she could leave them to share her modest competence.

Yet she called almost joyfully from the piazza: "Ellen, you're still achieving the impossible. Come in straight away, and give an account of yourself."

"Even if it is Sunday?" Ellen asked, her eyes twinkling. Miss Peggy's all but twinkled back, replying: "Sentence is a month's imprisonment."

"Commutation for good conduct?" Mrs. Edwards asked. Miss Peggy nodded but almost whispered: "Only half a day, even if you are angelic."

In the middle of the month came the earthquake. It was nothing less spiritually, though the ground stood fast. Up from New Zealand came a lawyer with proof incontestable that Anne Bell was heiress to so much money she could, if it pleased her, buy a whole fleet of airships. She was riotously glad—and full to overflowing of gratitude to her foster-mother, as well as to Mrs. Edwards. To Lois she said simply: "We'll share—as we've shared everything." There was no hindering her—the fortune was hers in fee. "We have only each other and Miss Peggy," Anne said, putting her hand in Lois' tiny palm. "Sharing is the best part of all. I sha'n't draw an easy breath till everything is fixed so it can't be changed."

Curiously enough, Mrs. Edwards was remotely responsible for Anne's inheritance; she had told the tragic story of the wreck and its outcome aboard ship in the hearing of a man bound for the far southern wonder world. He had remembered it well enough to find in it a clew that had led to finding the missing heiress. But, more curiously still, Anne said nothing of any reward to the elderly lady. They were good friends—indeed, the casual travelers now seemed grown into the life of the family at the Grange. Miss Peggy had let down all bars—she had first refused Sunday visitors through dread of staring, curious eyes filled with morbid interest. She had taken to the Gore boys wonderfully; they in turn gave her a reverent loving courtesy beautiful to see.

Still they were ready, but somehow the heart had gone out of them. They were restless, eager to be on their way to the "Great Adventure" of showing sweet Ellen her own country. They held themselves beautifully toward the new heiresses—there was nothing of pretension, neither of abasement, about them. But—there was a change—too subtle to be put in words. It could only be felt—and Anne felt it bitterly. Lois, more level-headed, was less miserable. She had an abiding faith in the eternal rightness of what ought to be. So upon a soft, starlit night she talked earnestly with Anne. In result, Anne sought out the Gores, gave a hand to each of them, and said with difficulty: "Boys—we want an appraisal. Lois and I. How much are we worth—just as we stand?"

"All the money in the world," from Phil. "And then some," from Edmund, in his deepest bass. "Then—you won't throw us away for less?" Anne questioned softly. Anybody who needs a set answer is invited to make it for himself.

LETTER WRITING LOST ART?

Women of Today No Longer Distributors of Family News; Lovers Use the Telephone.

A generation ago the unmarried women of the family spent much of their leisure keeping in touch with wanderers from the domestic fold by means of weekly letters—pages crossed, and, alas, recrossed in a thin script.

The family was bound by these letters of remembrance and news into the proverbial bundle of sticks and the answers from India, Australia and the outermost isles were stored by the old maids in drawers that had a scent of homemade potpourri.

Today there are no old maids, writes C. A. Dawson Scott in the continental edition of the London Mail. Instead, we have social workers and politicians and artists, trimly dressed, efficient women who spend what time they have after their work is done in keeping themselves in health by strenuous exercises. No longer are they an organization for the distribution of family news.

Nor do the young people do their love-making by letter. They are busy working, dancing, playing games and at odd moments they will call up the beloved on the telephone—which has at least the advantage of carrying the inflections of the voice, giving the chuckle and gurgle of laughter.

The post brings to the breakfast tray a number of white, gray and blue envelopes, but it is seldom that one of them contains that personal communication with a note of human feeling that alone can be dignified with the name of letter. However, it is true that hope is dauntless and undying. A wistfulness is behind the knife with which we slit open the envelope to draw out—invitations, suggested appointments, bills, receipts.

And sometimes, even in our hurried lives, we write the tender dream that lies behind our haste, and some lucky—and, let us hope, appreciative—soul finds it among the white litter on the tray.

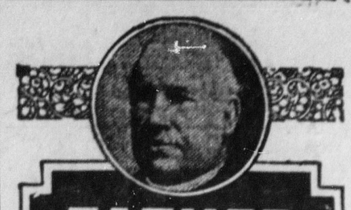
Such a letter is to most people a reminder of their loneliness amid the crowd—a hint that others are equally solitary.

I imagine that until the last breath has been breathed people will be glad of the sudden sunlight that such a letter brings into the closed room of life—something to warm limbs already growing cold.

Nor do I think it matters from whom comes the little glowing screed. Any soul that offers human affection makes us think that if we so love there may be behind the fog in which we have our being a great caring from which originally the little caring sprang.

Dynamite Kills Blight.

Down from the Powell fair comes a story about defending the melon patch from the blight. One exhibitor was asked whether he had trouble of that sort. "Never," he said. Urged to explain his method he replied "dynamite." "You don't blow 'em up?" inquired his anxious hearers. And then he proceeded to explain that he simply burned the pulverized explosive in his patches about the time the blight was expected. A blow will explode dynamite while a match may be applied to it and it will burn slowly. And it makes a heavy smoke as it burns that will lie close to the ground and float around among the plants. And it will kill all other pests, said the grower—"I bar none." Worth trying, but better be sure you know just how to handle dynamite.—Milwaukee Journal.



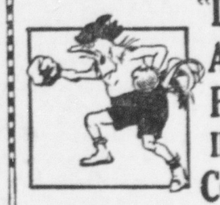
Here's a New Book Mark.

If you are tired of the regulation bookmark try this: Take a piece of ribbon in any desired shade, with a small shell or silver paper knife tied at one end and a large Chinese bead and ornament strung at the other. The ribbon may be a single piece holding the paper knife and bead by a ribbon flower that is sewn on to the end of the ribbon, after it has been drawn through the knife and bead. Or the ribbon may be doubled.

Transformation.

"Who was that handsome man I saw in my husband's room a few minutes ago, Mathilde?" asked Mrs. Makeuppe of her maid. "That was your husband, madame. He used your beautifier in mistake for his shaving lotion this morning."

WHO FIRST FELT "LIKE A FIGHTING COCK"?



COCK-FIGHTING was born with the cocks.

But it is only 80 years ago that the first man felt "like a fighting cock!"

Now he has brothers, sisters, nephews, nieces, all over the world—all feeling "like a fighting cock!"

It happens this way: A person half sick with bad stomach, dull and heavy headache, takes Beecham's Pills just before going to bed. Immediately the Pills begin to harmonize the digestive and eliminative organs.

Consequently, this person has a good night's sleep and arises in the morning with clear brain, bright eye, keen appetite, and full of energy for work and play.

It is now just 80 years since Beecham's Pills first began correcting disordered stomachs and stirring sluggish livers and bowels to natural activity — and feeling "like a fighting cock" is associated as inseparably with Beecham's Pills, as the pills are with good health.

The babe has been christened Richard Cook. Joe is making good in the Buckeye state with a large advertising agency and the new arrival may be developed as a right-hand aid in the business.

PLANNING FOR SPECIAL TRAIN

Philipsburg Boosters Would Come to Bellefonte with Team.

A strong effort is being put forth among the boosters of the Philipsburg High school basket ball team to have enough persons come for the game scheduled with the Bellefonte High for tomorrow evening to make it possible to secure a special train.

The regular rate for the trip from Philipsburg to Bellefonte and return is $4 12. By having a special train an excursion rate of $3 66 can be secured. There are other things to consider which make the special train plan a good one. It gives the Philipsburg boosters an opportunity to back up their team in force. They are able to leave Philipsburg on the evening of the game and to return with better accommodations. It requires 125 passengers to make the list and the boosters are hopeful of securing the number.

Philipsburg and Bellefonte games are always interesting and frequently closely contested. Philipsburg leads the Mountain basket ball league, but is so closely followed by Mt. Union that losing two games would tie them. Bellefonte has been previously beaten by the Philipsburg team that comes tomorrow evening, but since then the locals have shown remarkable increase in strength and defeated the Mt. Union team easily on last Friday evening at Mt. Union. With Philipsburg on the home floor, it now looks as though Bellefonte might win and much interest is being taken in the game.

Philipsburg is supporting her team to the last minute. Bellefonte should give our team equal support, especially since they have been making such good showings.

STATE GRAIN HOLDINGS

More Wheat and Oats! Less Corn Held.

Pennsylvania farmers are holding a little less corn, but more wheat and oats than last year according to report issued this week by G. L. Morgan, agricultural statistician, United States Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

The stock of corn on farms March 1 is estimated at 43% of last year's production or 29,761,000 bushels as compared with 32,034,000 bushels last year and 30,109,000 in 1921. The percentage of last year's corn crop which was of a merchantable quality, is estimated at 85% as compared with 90% in 1922 and 86% in 1921.

The stock of wheat on farms March 1 is estimated at 25% of last year's production or 6,085,000 bushels as compared with 5,906,000 bushels last year and 6,246,000 bushels the averaged stock on farms March 1 for the past 10 years. It is estimated that 42% of last year's crop has been or will be shipped out of the county where grown which amounts to 10,598,000 bushels as compared with 8,978,000 bushels last year and 9,185,000 bushels, the average amount shipped for the past 10 years.

The stock on farms on March 1 is estimated at 41% of last year's production or 16,909,000 bushels as compared with 14,467,000 bushels last year and 16,075,000 bushels, the average stock on hand March 1 for the past 10 years.

The following are the estimated average values of the several kinds of farm lands throughout the state:

Poor plow land, $33 per acre.

Good plow land, $70 per acre.

All plow lands, $53 per acre.

Average value of all farm lands with improvements is $70 per acre.

Without improvements, $47 per acre.

These figures average about 15% lower than the estimate a year ago.

ENFORCING PROHIBITION

State Police Active in Carrying Out Pinchot Program.

State police have been active in carrying out the prohibition enforcement features of the program of Governor Pinchot and made their biggest raid last week in Johnstown. That city, once noted as a "wet" one, is said to be the driest in its history.

The state police confiscated 150 barrels of beer and 400 gallons of whiskey. Two score in number they swooped down on the city with a vengeance and raided hotels and saloons, arresting 35 persons.

Raids quite frequently have been conducted in the western part of the state by the troopers who generally disregard prohibition officers and local police, working under state orders. The Johnstown affair, however, was on the largest scale to date. That the Governor really means to enforce the law and is doing it, regardless of opposition, becomes more apparent every day.

Released on Bail.

Charles Russell Stover, charged with non-support by his wife, furnished bail and was released from custody last Friday, after being arrested in Lock Haven while at work in the paper mill, and brought to Bellefonte to answer the charges.

Howard Pastor at Conference.

Rev. M. S. Q. Mellott, pastor of the M. E. church at Howard, is attending the conference in Harrisburg this week. Rev. Mellott has a splendid record in the churches in his charge and has many friends who wish his return.
